

2024 South Dakota Legislature | February 2, 2024

State of the State Address

Governor Kristi Noem kicked off the 99th South Dakota Legislative Session with her sixth State of the State Address on Tuesday, January 9, 2024. The Governor strayed from customary State of the State remarks, where typical addresses centered around legislative priorities like strengthening the economy or job creation and focused her remarks on the Top Ten things that prove Freedom Works Here. They are:

#10 Freedom to keep and bear arms;

#9 Freedom to enjoy the outdoors;

#8 Freedom to farm and ranch;

#7 Freedom to be secure;

#6 Freedom for a second chance;

#5 Freedom to be respected;

#4 Freedom to learn;

#3 Freedom to be healthy;

#2 Freedom for life;

#1 Freedom to work

Embedded in her address were references to several initiatives we may see during this legislative session such as: ongoing recruitment of gun and ammunition businesses; ongoing access to public hunting opportunities for South Dakotans; repeal the expiration of reduction in gross receipts and use tax rates; securing agricultural land from foreign adversaries; advancing new prison facilities for both men and women; relationship building with the tribal communities and legislation clarifying antisemitism as an unfair or discriminatory practice; greater support of South Dakota's educators; greater EMS access to all South Dakotans rural or urban; care programs for moms and babies before birth; and after and career opportunities for all South Dakotans.

After the fourth week or 17th day of this legislative session there have been 478 legislative bills filed, an increase of 96 bills from last week. This increase is largely due to unlimited bill introduction ending on January 25 and individual legislator introduction ending on January 31st. With these bill deadlines now behind us, we can fully focus on legislative matters that impact the banking industry. The next notable date is February 21st, known as Crossover Day. This is the last day to pass bills or joint resolutions by the house of origin.

Several more industry-related bills hit our radar this week. Updates on bills we have been tracking and new measures we are currently tracking can be viewed below.
